NATURAL BRIDGE GUESTS
ENJOY OUTDOOR LIFE

Long Drives, Hunt Hides, Tennis and Other Diversions Prove Attractive to Visitors.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Natural Bridge, Va., June 15.—These are lovely days in this favored land. The skies are so serene and the air so fresh and sweet that it is a joy to be out in the open. The Plaza Club holds its meetings all day long, and far into the night, and delightful gatherings they are. New members are added each day and contribute their share to the gaiety of the time. The ever-popular game of bridge whist beguiles some of the passing hours. Those wishing exercise descend to the lovely glen, where a rushing mountain stream speeds over rocky ledges. Some enjoy a boat ride on the lake which lies just below the bridge, while they trout for the speckled beauties of the trout pool. Others take long drives and see lovely mountain views. The drive to Lexington is always a popular one, as it leads to a picturesque and interesting town. The tennis court, bowling alleys and swimming pool invite the more energetic colonists. It scarcely needs these sports to create a fine appetite. In this bracing mountain air.

The cottages are now being opened and the summer colony is growing day by day. Applications for rooms pour in each day, and there seems to be not space enough for all those who wish to come. The management is now in the hands of W. G. Hamilton, who has been at the bridge for fifteen years. The Sunday excursion from Lynchburg is becoming more and more popular. Touring parties enliven all the hours of the day, so numerous they are.

Dr. W. T. Palmer, of Lynchburg, recently enjoyed an outing here.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Eubank, of North Carolina, are spending their honeymoon at the bridge.

A very attractive member of the early summer colony is Miss Margaret Sweeney, of Roslyn, L. I.

Miss Grace Hazen, of Bon Air, and Miss Paula Graeber, of Granite, are early summer colonists, who are finding recreation on these heights.

Mrs. T. L. Laue, of Dallas, Texas, and her daughter, Miss Leland Laue of Randolph-Macon Woman's College are sojourning at the bridge, after the excitement of the commencement season.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel, of Jacksonville, Fla., have come to the bridge for their honeymoon.

The distinguished divine, Dr. J. M. Farrar, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his son, J. M. Farrar, Jr., of Washington and Lee University, recently visited the bridge.
